As we dive deeper into the Fall season, we enter the time of year when deer struck by motorists are at the highest. According to the Highway Loss Data Institute (HLDI), November is the most dangerous month for deer strikes in North America, twice as many deer strikes are recorded as usual. The odds of an insured driver in the State of Pennsylvania striking an animal are 1 in 59 according to AARP. Approximately 185 people are killed each year due to Vehicle Collisions with animals each year. Radnor police wants to remind you to slow down and keep your eyes on the road so you do not risk an animal related accident.
